Let's take a look at how it all comes together...

Meet Eric and Mary

- Eric, 35, and Mary, 32, a young married couple purchasing their first home together.
- Their mortgage loan is $240,000 and their monthly mortgage payment is $1,200.
- Eric also has a car loan and the couple has a joint line of credit.

A complete loan insurance solution at a competitive rate

After meeting with their financial advisor and completing a needs analysis, the couple decides to purchase a joint life insurance coverage to cover their mortgage loan.

Insurance need	Type of coverage	Monthly premium for both Eric and Mary
A 25-year term life insurance to cover the mortgage loan	Term Plus 25, decreasing Joint First-to-Die, $240,000	$35.97
Total monthly premium for life insurance coverage		$35.97

They also decide on $50,000 of additional life insurance each to cover other loans.

A 30-year term life insurance to cover other loans	Term Plus 30, level Individual, $50,000 each	$14.94
Total monthly premium for life insurance coverage		$50.91

Eric and Mary plan to be accepted for life insurance coverage at a standard rate and therefore request $20,000 of critical illness coverage, which will be automatically approved without the need for additional underwriting.

The right solution adapted to their needs

Credit disability protection to help meet financial commitments

A year later, Eric injures himself and is temporarily unable to work. Given the disability protection he purchased, he is able to minimize the impact of his financial loss due to his disability by claiming a monthly benefit of $600 that will help cover his mortgage payment during his time off work.

Coverage when illness occurs

When Mary turns 40, she is diagnosed with a form of cancer covered under her critical illness coverage. She receives a $20,000 tax-free lump sum payment alleviating the financial burden due to the unplanned expenses incurred as a result of the illness, allowing her to focus on her recovery. Thanks to the built-in Assistance Benefit, Mary also has access to a wide range of assistance services including a second medical opinion service.

Thanks to their complete coverage, Eric and Mary are able to face the unexpected and relieve their financial worries.
